

Share knowledge and experience Join us as a SAGE Advisor or Project Manager

SAGE regularly relies on pro bono advisors and project managers with skills and interests to support our work for the common good.

As a pro bono advisor or project manager, you provide your knowledge and expertise about social causes, project management, communications, fundraising and much more.

Advisors and project managers are asked to volunteer five or more hours to support our work.

Here's how you can help:

- Share your background and expertise with SAGE so we can learn about you and ways that you can help advance our mission.
- Be available for discussions with one or more team members to advance an initiative or project for SAGE.
- Share more ideas or advice as you are able.
- ✓ Very flexible time commitment. SAGE welcomes advisors and project managers throughout the year and at different levels of engagement. In general, advisors and project managers complete a background check, and some may also complete a non-disclosure agreement.

Contact SAGE to learn more
Hello@WeAreSage.org • 971-717-6570

Visit WeAreSage.org

Examples of Opportunities for Advisors & Project Managers

Advisors and project managers bring a depth of knowledge, expertise, and personal networks to support SAGE. Below are a few examples of how you can help.

Share knowledge or contacts about:

- Education: early childhood education, mentoring in schools and after school programs, funding for higher education
- Environment: conservation, materials reuse, climate change, renewable power
- Economy: homelessness, food security, equal opportunity, job preparedness

Share in-depth knowledge in:

- Community organizing
- Marketing and communications
- Fundraising
- Website development
- Social media
- Building alliances and partnerships
- Training and supporting volunteers
- Graphic design
- Knowledge management
- Event planning
- Strategic planning
- Evaluation and measuring progress